

May 24-25, 2010, Dartmouth Medical School - Dr. Alan Kono (1981-82 Fellow), Dartmouth Medical School and Dr. Leslie Cooper (1988-89 Fellow), Mayo Clinic College of Medicine

Dr. Leslie Cooper's visit as a visiting professor at Dartmouth Medical School was a smashing success. He arrived Sunday and had dinner with the visiting faculty for the Dartmouth Heart Failure Symposium. On Monday, we had 200+ attendees at our symposium, and Leslie gave a lecture on Myocarditis, and then was in a break out session with 50 attendees on the work up of a new cardiomyopathy and the indications for endomyocardial biopsy.

On Monday evening, he had dinner at Dr. Alan Kono's home along with another visiting faculty, Maria Rosa Costanzo. On Tuesday, Dr. Cooper gave a special lecture to the Cardiology service and members of the cardiovascular research team on Myocarditis (Giant Cell vs. Lymphocytic) with about 40-50 attendees, including former Sarnoff fellows and friends (pictured below).

Drs. Arnie Katz, Leslie Cooper, Ellis Rolett, Suparna Chandra, Paul Anderson and Alan Kono.
